HAKON LEES

I will be serving the military in order to give back to my country (Estonia). In addition to that I will also need the time to help and clear my path for the future. I don't see it as something I am being forced into but as an experience from which I can learn and do my part for a safer European Union (a fighter for democracy). The internship means to me that I can have an advantage over the other students I will face in my time in Uni. I will never back down from a fight and give everything to win. This is probably an attribute I learned from my karting career.

As I am looking forward to studying Motorsport engineering, I have secured an internship at a garage in my home country in Estonia which will help me understand the world I will soon enter, where every little detail will need to be perfected. In other words perfection is just good enough in Motorsport. At SISD I gained the confidence that I am able to pursue my dreams without being scared. This was especially clear when I was able to teach teachers something new or having the trust and interest from the community around me when I was talking about my ideas. But the biggest lesson I learned from those times was that everybody makes mistakes the difference between individuals is: how you come back from those and if you become a better person because of it or not.

SAEED LOOTAH

I am registering for the national service of the UAE. I hope I can become more independent and experience proper military service. I hope to pursue university options in Japan after fulfilling this requirement.
